Vilmers Leather

Pure Leather

Natural leather has specifically been developed for furniture upholstery. Our beautiful cow leather originates from South America and is treated to the final product in Italy. The leather is tanned with chromium and vegetable ingredients, dyed in a barrel and corrected afterwards. The distinct look is achieved by finishing the leather with paraffin, oil and aniline dye.

Like Leather

After the leather is treated with aniline, it is covered with a thin surface layer that adds a greater variety of texture and keeps the natural softness. The color of the leather will remain more consistent over time, as well as more resistant to scratching, moisture and stains – this becoming a perfect choice for commercial areas and households with children and pets. However, it should be noted that semi-aniline leather must be kept out of direct sunlight.
